

ANNOUNCING THE BARA BRUNCH

In conjunction with the Intellectual Foundations of Applied Anthropology seminar (Anthropology 507), instructors Diane Austin and Tom McGuire have organized a series of presentations by distinguished colleagues throughout the semester. The inaugural "BARA BRUNCH" will be devoted to Anthropology and Public Policy, led by Merrill Eisenberg of the College of Public Health, and current president of the Society for Applied Anthropology, with the assistance of Diane Austin. This will be a two-part session, Tuesday, August 30, and Thursday, September 1. We cordially invite all interested colleagues – students, faculty, and community members – to attend. Subsequent brunches (given limited resources, these will unfortunately be BYOB – bring your own brunch) will be held through the semester. These include:

Tuesday, September 13

"Education and Advocacy"

Julio Cammarota, Department of Mexican American & Raza Studies

Tuesday, September 27

"Working on Teams, Managing Data"

Lauren Penney, School of Anthropology

Tuesday, October 11

"Health and Medicine"

Merrill Eisenberg, College of Public Health

Thursday, October 20

"Culture and Heritage"

T.J. Ferguson, School of Anthropology

Thursday, October 27

"Anthropology of Disasters"

Marion Pratt, USDA/AID and BARA

Tuesday, November 15

"Anthropology and Development"

Tim Finan, BARA; Don Nelson, Univ. of Georgia; Colin West, Univ. of North Carolina

Tuesday, November 22

"Mining and the Environment"

Mary Poulton, Mining and Geological Engineering

Week of November 28

"Universities and the Government"

Harry Luton, Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, Regulation, and Enforcement, US Dept. of the Interior

All Brunches will be held in Harvill, Rm. 103, from 9:30 to 10:45. Any schedule changes will be posted on the BARA webpage